PERI GILPIN AND FRENCH STEWART
JOIN MATTHEW MODINE TO SAVE THE ALPACAS

John Rando’s Cast Also Includes Reggie De Leon, Mark Espinoza and Mark Fite

Opening Night Wed, Sept 16

LOS ANGELES, August 5, 2009 — With Matthew Modine playing a role he is unequivocally perfect for (a fictionalized version of himself), one can imagine the casting challenge for the rest of the characters in the Geffen Playhouse’s upcoming production of Matthew Modine Saves the Alpacas. But – barring having identical names to the characters they play – the Geffen Playhouse’s cast includes a troupe of comedians befitting their satirical roles. Peri Gilpin, best known for her stint as Roz on NBC’s Frasier, takes on the role of Whimberly North – Matthew’s piquant publicist; and French Stewart, best known as Harry Solomon on Third Rock from the Sun, plays dual roles as Whimberly’s ubiquitous assistant Jeffrey, as well as the bungling United Nations Ambassador Perrier du Pierre Jouet. Other cast members include Reggie De Leon, Mark Damon Espinoza and Mark Fite playing a range of roles from a Chimboranzzi tribesman to Matthew Modine’s Conscience; one actor still remains to be cast and will be announced shortly.

“To have Matthew Modine, one of the greatest (and dare I say, underappreciated) actors of our generation, surrounded by comic geniuses like Peri Gilpin and French Stewart, is the most phenomenal gift a playwright could ever receive,” said playwright Blair Singer. “I do not deserve a cast this exceptional; that said, I’m not giving them back.”

Written by Blair Singer and directed by John Rando, this rollicking comedy tells the plight of Matthew Modine – a celebrity desperately in need of getting back in the limelight. He needs a Cause. Luckily (for him), there is a rare breed of Chimborazzzi Alpacas on the verge of extinction in the mountains of Ecuador. So Matthew jets down south to resurrect the alpacas – and, more importantly, his career. After all, desperate times call for desperate celebrities. A world premiere production, Matthew Modine Saves the Alpacas is a satire in which no one is left unscathed.

Matthew Modine Saves the Alpacas runs through Oct 18 on the Geffen Playhouse’s main stage. As the first play of the 09/10 season, this is also the first play with the Geffen Playhouse’s new curtain times for its 09/10 season: performances Tuesday through Saturday evening will begin at 8pm; Sunday evening will begin at 7pm; Saturday matinee at 3pm and Sunday matinee at 2pm.
